SSARC provides consultation services for students interested in investigating careers and advanced degree options upon graduation. Annually, SSARC serves over 3,000 students through the creation of educational plans and identification of personalized academic co-curricular activities that enhance student academic portfolios. Students may also engage in independent research through SSARC in fields of higher education and leadership development. SSARC's resource library includes internship and scholarship databases, as well as graduate and professional school preparation texts and training documents.

SSARC identifies innovative ways in which students can augment their academic portfolios to enhance students' educational journeys. SSARC's emphasis on the Five Pillars of Education – academics, research, practical experience, leadership, and community service – sets its services apart from similar organizations on most university campuses.

innovate

SSARC impacts the local and UCI community through co-curricular activities and skills development opportunities. Helping to place students in graduate and professional degree programs while assisting in writing research proposals, personal statements and resumes, SSARC makes an everlasting impression on students striving to become competitive in their fields of study. SSARC empowers students with the opportunity to serve as positive change leaders in the community by partnering with local non-profits to improve the lives of underserved populations in Orange County.
