faculty

Victoria Bernal (Ph.D., Northwestern)
gender, war, cyberspace, islam, transnationalism, africa

Tom Boellstorff (Ph.D., Stanford)
digital cultures, queer studies, indonesia

Leo Chavez (Ph.D., Stanford) migration, media, discourse analysis, visual semiotics, medicine

Eve Darian-Smith (Ph.D., University of Chicago)
human rights, global governance, international law, social and legal theory postcolonialism, indigenous law and politics

Kim Fortun (Ph.D., Rice University)
environmental problems and science, science and technology, environmental health, disaster, india

Michael Fortun (Ph.D., Harvard) anthropology of science, air pollution science, data science, genetics, history of science, united states, iceland

David T. Goldberg (Ph.D., City University of New York)
race and racism, social and political theory, social-legal studies/law and society, south africa

Sherine Hamdy (Ph.D., New York University) medical anthropology, science, technology and society, bioethics, comics, islam, egypt, middle east

Mimi Ito (Ph.D., Stanford) technology usage, focusing specifically on children and youths changing relationships to media and communications

Angela Jenks (Ph.D., UC Berkeley, UCSF)
medical anthropology, race and ethnicity, urban ethnography, u.s.

Eleana Kim (Ph.D., New York University)
kinship, transnationalism, environment, korea

George Marcus (Ph.D., Harvard)
elites, ethnography and cultural critique, pacific

Bill Maurer (Ph.D., Stanford)
money and finance, law and culture, caribbean

Keith M. Murphy (Ph.D., UCLA)
linguistics, design, aesthetics and morality, sweden

Sylvia Nam (Ph.D., UC Berkeley)
urban studies, property, transnational expertise, southeast asia

Valerie Olson (Ph.D., Rice)
environmental systems, science and technology, u.s., extreme environments

Kristin Peterson (Ph.D., Rice)
science and tech, feminism, pharmaceuticals, west africa

Damien Sojoyner (Ph.D., University of Texas at Austin) prisons, public education, urban anthropology, race, african diaspora theory, public policy and law, gender, united states
Ian Straughn (Ph.D., University of Chicago)
archaeology, cultural heritage, middle east and islamic studies, space and landscape, material culture

Roxanne Varzi (Ph.D., Columbia)
iran, war, islam, visual anthropology, film, art/popular culture in iran, social cultural anthropology, religious studies, visual culture

Mei Zhan (Ph.D., Stanford)
medical anthropology, science and technology studies, theory and methodology, chinese medicine, globalization, china

anthropology graduate program

UCI School of Social Sciences

#08

best anthropology program in the U.S.
-Center for a Public Anthropology

04
articles published in top
three academic journals
-Academic Analytics

01 university committed to economic diversity and upward mobility
-New York Times College Access Index

09
public university in the U.S.
-U.S. News & World Report

uci anthropology

A top 10-ranked program with research strengths in theory & methodology

UCI anthropologist Tom Boellstorff explores how people with disabilities make use of online environments.

anthro@uci.edu | 949.824.7602

www.anthropology.uci.edu

Considering a graduate degree in anthropology?

Consider UCI.

Ranked #8 among all anthropology programs in the country (Center for a Public Anthropology), the UCI graduate program in anthropology offers admitted students 6-7 years of guaranteed funding. Scholars in the department have an unparalleled record of earning competitive research funding and fellowships from agencies including the National Science Foundation, Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, and International Currency Association, and from campus-level fellowships, such as the Public Impact, Fletcher Jones and Chancellor's Club fellowships. This past year, UCI anthropologists brought in $1 million in external grant funding.

In terms of publications, UCI anthropologists rank 4th in the world in publishing in the top three academic journals, and graduate students have incredible opportunities to publish alongside the department's world-renowned faculty.

And if that wasn't enough, the UCI campus is located less than 10 miles from Newport Beach, is the #1 university doing the most for the American dream (New York Times College Access Index), and the #9 ranked public university in the U.S. (U.S. News & World Report).

The anthropology department at UCI focuses on social and cultural anthropology. UCI anthropologists link emergent ways of thinking and living to histories of colonialism, economic interchange and mediated communication.

Graduate research specialties include:

- Modernity and development
- Environmental problems and politics
- Politics, law and economy
- Ethnographic research methods
- Science, technology and medicine

Graduate training in anthropology at UCI includes intensive courses in both theory and method, followed by long-term, independent fieldwork. Students have an opportunity to earn a master's degree while in pursuit of their Ph.D., and are encouraged to enroll in interdisciplinary coursework.

Graduate students from UCI's anthropology program have gone on to professorial and professional posts at esteemed universities and organizations across the globe.

A quick sampling of recent placements:

- Cal State Long Beach
- Rice University
- Smith College
- Swiss Academy of Sciences
- Tufts University
- UNESCO
- UC Riverside
- University of Notre Dame
- University of Pittsburgh
- University of Wisconsin
- Wellesley College

If full funding, opportunities to publish, and a proven track record of excellence in the field are what you're looking for in a graduate program, contact us today to learn more about UCI anthropology.

Kim Fortun, Department Chair
kfortun@uci.edu | 949.824.0646

Leo Chavez, Graduate Program Director
lchavez@uci.edu | 949.824.4054

Tom Boellstorff, Graduate Admissions
Director, tboellst@uci.edu | 949.824.9944

John Sommerhauser, Graduate Advisor
jdsommer@uci.edu | 949.824.4074